CACCHARIN 300 times sweeter than sugar. One or two thy Tabloids of Saccharin added to a cup of tea coffee, or cocon, in lieu of as many lumps of sugar-will impart to it a sweet and delicate flavour. Sacoharin Tabloida are now being used on the Tables of many distinguished people as a delicacy, in preference to ordinary cane augar, as they do not impair the arous of the choicet tea or coffee. Specially " adapted for persons suffering from Diabetes. Supplied by all Chemists in oval bettles (vinaigrette style) 100 and 200 in each.

Hongkong, June 1978, 1890. In his Lungchow trade report for last year injustice. This provision of the new Bill is, and all modern improvements, water ballast in and with endeavouring to obtain six and a half Mr. Carles, Commissioner of Customs discussing different trade routes, says that the West River, with its numerous feeders branching out in every direction, is the natural trade route for nearly all the Kwangsi province, and if the Chinese Government ever decides to abolish lekin stations no railway in Tonkin could compete with the river route in the matter of cheapness; if such a thing should be done, all the big towns along the river would draw their supplies from, and ship their produce to, Canton. A boat of over 200 piculs carrying capacity can be engaged to go from Canton to Lungchow for $100, which makes the freight less than 50 cents per picul. The only reason native merchants do not use this route now is on or periods as may from time to time be deaccount of the numerous lekin charges on the way. Between Canton and Wu-chow there are'no less than ten lekin stations where boats have to stop, and between Wu-chow. and Nan-ning there are six. We would commend this passage in Mr. CARLES's report to the careful consideration of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce. We are constantly hearing complaints of the want of expansion of the trade in South China, but how is it possible that trade can expand when it is obstructed by squeeze stations at every few miles? Compare this state of things with the advantages enjoyed by our French neighbours in Tonkin for the promotion of trade in south-western China. Mr. A. HAPPER, the Commissioner at Mengizu, tells us in his report, that while the levy for transit dues across Tonkin on most articles is light, in only a certain line of goods reach. Robinson yesterday at the Police Court with ing 5 per cent. of their value, merchandise, ant admitted the charge and his Worship imboth of foreign and Chinese origin, once posed a fine of $10 with the alternative of six having paid, at Mengtzu, import duty at three-tenths less than the tariff rates of the open ports, is in a position to claim, and does claim, the privileges of the transit pass, which frees it from further taxation, on its Brine retired from the service in 18 4 and after to been engaged in the cotton and cotton year. English constable and a Chinese conjourney through the whole province and has carried it into Szechuen. Why should not this same privilege of the transit pass be allowed to goods leaving Canton for the various districts of the Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces?

THE Women and Girls' Protection Bill which was read a first time at the last meet. ing of the Legislative Council, finally does away with the system of official medical inspection of public women. When compulsory medical examination was discontinued by order of the Secretary of State, the women, so far from approving of the course, presented petitions to the Registrar-General praying that the examination might be continued; and in the Ordinance passed last year provision was made for voluntary ex- tection of Women and Girla"

THE COLLISION BETWEEN: A STEAMER AND A JUNK.

Mr. Wodehouse heard further evidence at the Magistracy on the 17th iast. in connection with the death of a girl who was on board a fishing junk that was run into by the Namyong on the Capt. W. J. Wooldridge, of the steamer Num-yong, said his steamer left Hongkon; on a voyage to Sagon about 1230 p.m. on the 1st inst. When the had got as far as between Gap Rock and the Great Ladrone Island he heard the shouting of some people. He was in the bridge house at the time. He ran on deck and saw a junk-almost under the ship's bows, about twenty or thirty yards off. The steamer was going full speed at the time; that was about ten knots. The junk lay right across her hows and had sile set; she was heading about N.E. or E and had her port side to ned to the steamer. He had the engines reversed at once and the belm but hard a port, but it was too late to prevent a collision, and the steamer went right into the junk, and nearly split her in two. There were eight or ten people on board the junk. Had he known earlier, there would have been no difficulty in avoiding the junk. So far as he knew everybody on board the junk was saved, The junk people said so at the time. J. W. Hassal, second officer, who was in charge of the steamer at the time, said he first noticed the junk when she was about a mile and a half He thought the steamer would pass astern of her, but he found afterwards that he bad mis-
